

TO CHANGE THE STATE ELECTIONS

Measures Introduced in Ohio Legislature to Revise Present System

IN STATE PLATFORM

And Promise Will be Kept by Administration Lead- ers—Busy With Gerry- mander Bills.

Columbus, Jan. 25.—Promise of fulfillment of another plank in the Democratic state platform is seen in bills introduced by Senator Thomas M. Gregory of Hamilton county. These bills are a part of a series that have been prepared by administration leaders to revise and modernize the election machinery of the state. The only express pledge the Democrats gave was a law for separate state and national ballots, thus enabling the voter to discriminate between state and national issues.

This pledge is covered in the first of the Gregory bills. It follows in general terms the laws that have been adopted in Wisconsin and New York. The second bill would make the straight voting on presidential electors compulsory by eliminating the square opposite the name of each elector on the ticket. Under the present law the voter would contain only a circle under the name of each party.

The purpose of this is to simplify the count of votes and to expedite the tabulation. The act would apply the "unit rule" on presidential electors, thus insuring the solid electoral vote to the presidential candidate who received a plurality of votes.

The first of the proposed congressional redistricting bills is expected to make its debut in the Senate hopper within a few days.

In connection with the proposed bills, it is understood that the old Seventh-Eleventh district situation has again arisen. At present these districts, normally Republican, are represented by Democrats, respectively, J. D. Post of Washington C. H., and Horatio C. Claypool of Chillicothe. Neither is averse to returning to Congress, but the proposal has been made that the districts should be re-framed, so that one will be surely Republican and the other surely Democratic.

Rapid start in the carrying out of another proposed election reform is seen in the action of the House Committee on Privileges and Elections in reporting the Young bill for passage. It makes the clerk of the Supreme court an appointive officer to be named by the judges and not elected by the people. The bill is designed to shorten the ballot. As an administration measure, the bill is expected to have smooth sailing in both branches.

An hour after he had vacated the room he has occupied for more than a year, as secretary of the Constitutional Convention, C. B. Galbreath found his action premature. The other day the House passed, by an overwhelming vote, Representative Fulton's joint resolution, which advised Galbreath to get himself out quickly, as his room was needed for committee meetings. Friday morning the secretary packed up his effects and prepared to leave.

At the same hour the Senate was opposing Fulton's resolution. Senator Green, majority floor leader, led off by declaring the resolution ill-advised and unnecessary, and Senator Howard, minority leader, asserted that the secretary was already moving. It was accordingly killed, but the secretary kept on moving.

On Monday morning the tale-telling lobbyist registration book will be opened in the Secretary of State's office. It was announced last night.

Since the passage of the anti-lobby bill three days ago by the legislature there has been a daily string of applicants for lobbyist credentials. One of the first was Wayne B. Wheeler, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league.

"Most of those applying so far do not understand that the application must be made by the company, person or association employing the lobbyist, but instead think they can make application in person," John H. Seeger, assistant secretary of state, said yesterday. He added that the lobbyist certificates to be issued will be about the size of the card now used as a certificate for auto licenses issued.

OTTOMAN REPUBLIC FORMED

Is Report Received, But Not Confirmed, From Bucharest

NAVAL DEMONSTRATION

Will be Made by the Powers Before Constantinople and Warships Speed to Bosphorus.

London, Jan. 25.—Mohammed V., sultan of Turkey, has abdicated, and the Ottoman republic has been proclaimed by the committee of union and progress, according to a special and unconfirmed dispatch today from Bucharest.

Advices from Vienna positively deny that the sultan has abdicated.

London, Jan. 25.—British and Italian warships today were speeding through the Mediterranean on their way to the Bosphorus, following the decision of the powers, through their London ambassadors, to make a naval demonstration before Constantinople.

United States, Russian and German vessels already are in the harbor.

While the ambassadors were in session today at the foreign office, the Balkan peace delegates called a conference for this afternoon, at which it was planned to decide on recommendations to be made simultaneously to their four governments regarding the termination of negotiations.

Although order has been restored in Constantinople today, all the streets of the Turkish capital were patrolled by soldiers and the city was under martial guard.

Constantinople dispatches received here by way of the European capitals, strengthened the report that the Young Turk cabinet had served an ultimatum upon Sultan Mohammed V. that his official days were numbered.

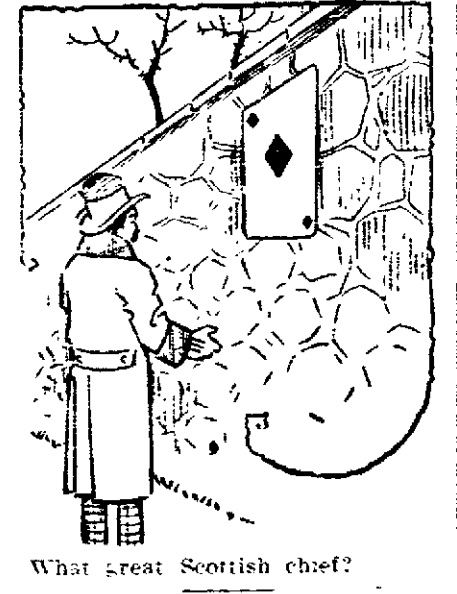

Two reports were current in this connection. One was that the Turkish crown prince would be enthroned because of his sympathy with the militarists; the other was that a republic was to be proclaimed.

The Turkish peace envoys, headed by Rechad Pasha, were still in this city today, despite the authoritative announcement late yesterday that they had been recalled by Grand Vizier Shekret Pasha.

AVIATOR FLIES ACROSS ALPS

Dompdofolla, Italy, Jan. 25.—Jean Deloucci, the Peruvian aviator, flew across the Swiss Alps from Brig to this city in less than a half hour today. He ascended at Brig in his monoplane at 12 and landed here at 12:25.

FOUR DAYS' SUCCESSFUL AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL IS CONDUCTED AT PATASKALA

Experts from the Extension Department of the College of Agriculture of Ohio State University Well Re- paid by Interest Shown by the Farmers of Lima Township.

Pataskala, Jan. 25.—Undeniable interest in better methods of agriculture has been manifested in this vicinity during the past few days, occasioned by the conducting of an agricultural school, lasting four days, under the direction of the extension workers of the College of Agriculture of Ohio State University. The sessions commenced Tuesday morning, with M. A. Bachtell, soil fertility expert of the College of Agriculture, in charge, and assisted by W. E. McCoy, expert in crops, L. P. Bailey, a successful dairyman of Belmont county, as instructor in dairying and cattle judging, and the Misses Josephine Matthews and Catherine Creamer, both identified with extension work of the agricultural college, in charge of the women and girls' division of the school.

The average attendance at each of the lectures for men has been about 75, while over a hundred women have taken the course in home economics, including instruction in domestic science, cooking, home sanitation, etc. This work has been especially designed for the wives of farmers, but was the means of arousing substantial interest in the work of the State University among numerous wives and daughters of Pataskala, and efforts will be made to have a similar school conducted in Pataskala at least once a year, with assurances of even greater interest during coming years.

The local management of the school comprised such men as J. B. Atkinson, president, and C. C. Baird, secretary, and course tickets were sold at a rate of $1 for the men in attendance and only fifty cents for the women's courses. So successful did this prove, in point of covering the expenses of the instructional course, advertising, etc., that over $100 was secured, with expenditures of $85.50 for the four days' course. This leaves a balance of $14.50 that will be distributed, pro rata, to those purchasing the course tickets, thereby making their instruction cost less than half of the original estimate. This fact alone should insure the success of future similar schools, and convince doubters of the advisability of purchasing course tickets rather than individual admissions.

Friday's session closed, for the men, with a demonstration in cattle judging by Mr. L. P. Bailey, who accompanied his lecture with numerous reminiscences from his own experience in cattle buying and selling. He emphasized the necessity of securing well developed cattle where breeding

OMNIBUS PRIVATE PENSION BILL IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 25.—The house yesterday passed the omnibus private pension bill reported by the committee on invalid pensions, providing for original pensions or increases of pensions for 427 persons, 29 of whom are Ohioans, 40 residents of Indiana, 22 of Kentucky and 14 of West Virginia.

Representative Isaac Sherman of Toledo, O., led the fight for the bill during the debate. Representative Rogers of Georgia, made another attack of Pension Commissioner James L. Davenport, calling him a "soldier broker" during the Civil War.

The bill brings the total number of private pension bills granted by this congress to 3517.

General Sherman declared that, considering the size of the armies and the casualties, congress provided better for the soldiers of the revolution than those of today. He said that land, property and money was given to soldiers in those days. Sherman gave 200 acres of land and a slave to each of his soldiers.

Among those from the Seventeenth Ohio congressional district who will be benefited by the bill are Solomon D. Strutz, Casserton, $21 to $27; Ernest Gale, Lima, $12 to $27; Alex. B. Henderson, Philadelphia, $12 to $20; Margaret A. Ray, Hazel, $12.

is to be undertaken, and showed the scientific points, which should be looked for in thoroughbred animals. He was tendered the use of several farms owned by local farmers and there was not a little surprise when the expert called attention to a number of points which, in a judging contest, would necessitate demerits. In spite of the fact that the animals, to the average farmer, looked especially fine, Mr. Bailey called attention to the literature distributed by the experiment station and the College of Agriculture particularly dealing with the subject of cattle judging and urged every farmer to secure copies without delay.

The correction of soil acidity was the theme of the morning lecture by Mr. Bachtell and proved particularly interesting. The agricultural expert declared that the presence of "sour" (Continued on page 10, col. 4.)

FINANCE ORDINANCE IS PASSED; NO FUNDS WERE TRIMMED AT THE CAUCUS

Newark's city council succeeded in agreeing on the finance ordinance at the adjourned meeting held Friday night. The ordinance has been hanging fire for a month. The effort to pass it under suspended rules Monday night failed because some of the councilmen declared they should have been informed regarding some of the increases. The finance committee which drafted the ordinance was highly pleased when the measure was passed as framed, not an item in the bill being trimmed. On the contrary, four or five were increased by amendments proposed by various members.

President Rosell was unavoidably absent from the meeting and President Pro Tem Frank Muenz presided. The reading of the minutes was dispensed with and the finance ordinance was the only measure considered.

Amendments adding materially to the safety fund for fire hydrants; to the treasurer's fund to provide clerk hire, and to the fund for the humane officer's salary were quickly adopted and the measure placed on its second and third reading and final passage. President Pro Tem Muenz signed the measure last night and when Mayor Swartz affixed his signature today it became a law and the funds were available by the city auditor and treasurer to pay city employees who have been without money since the last pay day, on Dec. 31.

NO ADVANCE IN PRICES CLAIM HACKMEN TODAY

Newark hackmen deny the fact that they have boosted the prices for hacks for funerals, as was stated in Friday's edition of the Advocate. On the contrary, they claim that prices remain the same as they were before the price list was issued.

"The card containing the price list was printed for the convenience of the funeral directors, said a local hackman to the Advocate today. "Funeral directors, in arranging with people for hacks for funerals, are often asked the prices for carriages to country churches and cemeteries. This list states plainly and concisely just what prices are charged. He can show the price list to the inquirer and the latter is assured that no one is overcharging him for the service."

The only case where the price was advanced, according to a hackman, is for the trip to Hanover. Not long ago a local hackman cut the price to $5. This was restored to the old price of $7, which has been the price for several years past.

The hackman called attention to the fact that it cost $1 for a driver each time a hack was sent out; that it costs 25 cents to clean the hack after being used and that the undertakers charged 10 per cent for collecting the account, so by the time the hackman had paid these expenses, he had little left of the original fee charged for the service.

STRIKING WAITERS IN RIOT

Dining Room Service in Leading New York Hotels Badly Crippled

CALL POLICE RESERVES

In Endeavor to Restore Order—Proprietors May Ap- peal to Governor for Militia.

New York, Jan. 25.—A detail of 500 extra police was distributed through the hotel district today in an effort to check further rioting of striking waiters. Special officers are assisting and the sheriff is ready to swear in deputies to cope with the situation. Officers of the international workers' union say that 4,000 waiters and kitchen helpers are out. A mass meeting has been called and it is hoped to augment the number of strikers.

New York, Jan. 25.—A series of demonstrations and disturbances occurred in the hotel and restaurant district of this city last night, when thousands of striking waiters and sympathizers overran some of the principal streets and engaged in serious rioting. The rioting followed successes by several thousand hotel employees in crippling the dining service in a number of big hotels. Failing to tie up other hostilities and restaurants, the riotous elements carried on a warfare of jostling patrons, turning in false alarms of fire, attacking waiters who have not walked out and throwing bricks through windows.

When the theatre audiences began to pour forth on their way home, the disturbers were still overflowing the sidewalks. Men and women in evening clothes were forced into the streets as gangs of idlers swept down upon them. Many fights resulted when escorts retaliated with fists.

The life of one proprietor, James B. Regan, of the Hotel Knickerbocker, has been threatened, he said last night. Regan has thrown a guard of 60 special policemen, each man more than six feet tall, around his hotel, and has announced his intention of keeping rioting waiters away from his doors. Regan discharged his entire force of waiters, having anticipated a strike, and hired men in their places.

At every police station in the hotel district the reserves were prepared for a call at any moment and squad after squad was sent forth to quell disturbances.

In the course of the disorder 200 striking waiters stormed the Ritz-Carlton Hotel and swung one of the big revolving doors from its socket in their rush. Others, from vantage points outside, threw stones and succeeded in breaking windows as high as the sixth floor in the Carlton House apartments, where Police Commissioner Waldo has rooms.

During the attack several pistol shots were fired. As a result of the disturbance under his window, Commissioner Waldo personally summoned police reserves from the nearest station house.

Some of the hotel and restaurant managers, alarmed at the trend of the night's events, said they might ask Sheriff Harbinger to call out his 1600 deputies to put down the disturbers of the peace. The more agitated among them said that they were considering a call on Governor Sulzer for protection through the militia. It was considered by most of those chiefly concerned, however, that the police were amply able to cope with the situation. Sheriff Harbinger said that he would call his duties out if it was found necessary and he was called upon to do so.

Among the strikers were 300 waiters and employees at the new Hotel McAlpin. The dining room force at the Twenty-third street branch of the Y. M. C. A. joined the strike.

Among many persons hurt during last night's outbreaks was Dominick Leonora, a cook, said to be on strike. Leonora was attacked near strike headquarters and left lying in the gutter. His skull was fractured and he was removed, in a serious condition, to a hospital.

London, O., Jan. 25.—Benjamin Yoder, a well known farmer of near Plain City, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. He worried because he sold his farm to move to Indiana.

QUICK DELIVERY OF THE TELEPHONE DIRECTORIES TODAY

Thirty-three hundred telephone directories of the Newark Telephone Company were delivered today to the company's subscribers in Newark. Before Monday or Tuesday of next week, every subscriber whose name appears in the directory will have received a directory. Besides the 3300 delivered in Newark, 800 will be delivered outside of Newark to subscribers in the country and in Granville and Hanover.

The efficient force of carriers of the Advocate, under the direction of Circulation Manager E. J. Cannon, distributed the books in past years it has required several days and some times a week to distribute these books, but by employing the Advocate carriers to take the books over their routes with which they are familiar, the company has been able to place the books in the hands of every subscriber in one day.

Coincident with the distribution of the directories, changes in the numbers of about 100 telephones will be made. All these new numbers will be contained in the new directories. It should also be remembered that with the delivery of the directories, the numbers are changed, which are used in calling the Granville and Hanover exchanges.

These changes were made at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Granville's new number is 1901. With this change, the company also places at the disposal of the subscribers five trunk lines to the college town, where two were available before. A new invention installed in the local exchange automatically selects a trunk line which is not busy. When the subscriber wanting Granville calls "1901," if the first trunk is busy, the invention automatically selects a trunk which is not busy and makes the connection. If all the trunks are busy, the subscriber gets the "busy" test.

The Hanover number, which has been 96, has been changed, and two trunks have been provided. These are numbered 1501 and 1502. In calling Hanover, use either number.

The company makes the suggestion that each subscriber destroy the old directory as soon as the new one is delivered. After today, many of the numbers which were in the old book will be changed and the use of the old book would only cause confusion and delay. The changing of the 150 telephone numbers is a big task and if subscribers have any difficulty in reaching the number called, the trouble clerk should be notified, when the matter will be straightened out speedily.

The new directory is several pages smaller than the one issued last summer. This is due to the fact that a number of pages of advertising have been eliminated. Several hundred subscribers have been added to the list since the last directory was issued, attesting to the popularity of the "Automatic."

Subscribers not receiving their new directories by Monday or Tuesday will confer a favor on the company by notifying the office. It is possible that some of the subscribers in remote parts of the city will not get their books today.

DR. FRIEDMANN TURNS SERUM OVER TO THE MINISTRY

Berlin, Jan. 25.—Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, whose declaration that he had discovered a cure for tuberculosis brought a deluge of letters, telegrams and personal inquiries upon him, went to the Ministry of the Interior yesterday to hand in a tube of his serum to the Chief of the Public Health Department, with the request that the Government designate physicians to co-operate with him in giving it a most exhaustive trial.

Dr. Friedmann had not intended to make his remedy public so soon, but was driven to do this by the efforts of a number of the most prominent Berlin physicians to get hold of his serum, and by their assertions that they had succeeded.

Of two serums which his rivals are now holding out as the Friedmann serum, Dr. Friedmann declares that one is ineffective, and the other dangerous, and he refuses to have his name connected with them.

One serum obtained from the blood of a tuberculosis patient, who had been inoculated by Dr. Friedmann, bacilli which he said, had been developed by the Friedmann serum, and he has been using a culture from these bacilli.

Million Dollars Offered.
New York, Jan. 25.—Charles E. Finck, president of the Aetna National Bank, announced yesterday afternoon that he was offering $1,000,000 to Dr. F. Friedmann of Berlin, the discoverer of a remedy for tuberculosis, if Dr. Friedmann will come to this country and cure 100 of 100 patients to be placed under his care. At the conference was Dr. Dawson Brown of Saratoga Lake, N. Y., who, according to Mr. Finck, will have the administration of the serum for 100 patients if the offer is accepted.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The abandonment of the inaugural ball and the decision not to permit the use of the capital for the use of a public reception, has ended talk of a mammoth public reception which it is intended to hold at the White House on the eve of March 4.

Germany Holds the Key to Adrianople

At the negotiations of the Balkan States with Turkey, the question of the ownership of Adrianople has been receiving much attention, and it is interesting to note that at the present time Germany owns the key to that city, and has it carefully tucked away in the Berlin Arsenal. This key was a present from the Czar of Russia to King Frederick William III. of Prussia, after the conquest of Adrianople in 1459, and was given as a token of appreciation for the excellent work of the Prussian officers and men in the campaign.

IS JUST LIKE A LUNNON FOG DONCHER KNOW

Newark residents and drivers "felt their way along" for a while this morning owing to the heavy fog that enveloped the city. The fog appeared at the rising of the sun and gradually grew heavier until at 7 o'clock it found men heavy clouds. About 7 o'clock the mist began to dissipate and half an hour later had vanished almost completely.

CHAPTER VI.

Moonlight and Poetry.

A ball followed dinner that night. Wednesday. The ample lounge-room filled up rapidly after coffee; officers in smart uniforms and spurs, whose principal function in times of peace is to get in everybody's way, towel exposed ankles, and demolish lace ruffles. Egyptians and Turks and sleek Armenians in somber western frock and scarlet eastern fez or tarboosh, women of all colors (meaning, as course, as applied) and shapes and tastes, the lean and the fat, the tall and short, such as Billy Taylor is said to have kissed in all the ports, and tail-coats of as many styles as Joseph's had patches. George could distinguish his compatriots by the fit of the trousers round the instep; the Englishman had his fitted at the waist and trusted in Providence for the hang of the rest. This trifling detective work rather pleased George. The women, however, were all eyes to his eye; liberal expanses of beautiful white skin, the bare effect being modified by a string of pearls or diamonds or emeralds, and hair which might or might not have been wholly their own. He waited restlessly for the reappearance of Mrs. Chedsoye and her daughter. All was right with the world, except that he was to sail altogether too soon. His loan had been returned, and he knew that his former suspicions had been most unworthy. Mrs. Chedsoye had never received his note.

Some one was sitting down beside him. It was Rynne, in evening clothes, immaculate, blase, pink-cheeked. There are some men so happily framed that they can don ready-made suits without calling your attention to the fact. George saw at once that the adventurer was one of these fortunate individuals.

"Makes a rather good picture to look at; eh?" began Rynne, rolling a flake-tobacco cigarette. "Dance?"

"No. Wish I could. You've done quick work," with admiring inspection. "Not a flaw anywhere. How do you do it?"

"Thanks. Thanks to you, I might say. I did some tall hustling, though. Strange, how we love these funeral toggeries. We follow the dance and we follow the dead, with never a variation in color. The man who invented the modern evening clothes must have done good business during the day as chief-mourner."

"Why don't you send for your luggage?"

Rynne caressed his chin. "My luggage is, I believe, in the hands of the enemy. It is of no great importance. I never carry anything of value, save my skin. I'm not like the villain in the melodrama; no incriminating documents, no lost wills, no directions for digging up pirates' gold."

"I suppose you'll soon be off for America?" George asked indifferently.

"I suppose so. By the way, I saw you at the game today."

"No! Where were you?"

"Top row. I am going to ask a favor of you. It may sound rather odd to your ears, but I know those ladies rather well. I kept out of the way till I could find some clothes. The favor I ask is that you will not tell them anything regarding the cirwould have been bleaching upon the banks of the Tigris."

"What the deuce is this company called?" George was enjoying the conversation immensely.

"The United Romance and Adventure company, Ltd., of London, Paris, and New York."

"Have you any of the company's paper with you?" George repressed his laughter because Rynne's face was serious enough.

"Unfortunately, no. But if you will give me your banker's address I'll be pleased to forward you the prospectus."

"Kazuth, Nachod and Kuhne. I am shortly leaving for home. Better send it to New York. I say, suppose a chap buys an adventure that is not up to the mark; can he return it or exchange it for another?"

"No. It's all chance, you know. The rules of the game are steel-bound. We find you an adventure; it's up to you to make good."

"But, once more suppose a chap gets a little too rough a game, and doesn't turn up for his dividends; what then?"

"In that event," answered Rynne sadly, "the stock reverts to the general fund."

George lay back in his chair and let go his laughter. "You are mighty good company, Mr. Rynne."

"Well, well; we'll say nothing more about it. But a moment gone you spoke as if you were game for an exploit."

"I still am. But if I knew the adventure was prearranged, as you say, and I was up against a wall, there would be the inclination to cable the firm for more instructions."

Rynne himself laughed this time. "That's a good idea. I don't believe the company ever thought of such a contingency. But I repeat, our business is to give you the kick-off. After that you have to fight for your own downs."

"The stock isn't listed?" again laughing.

"Scarcely. One man tells another, as I tell you, and so on."

"You send me the prospectus. I'm rather curious to have a look at it."

"I certainly shall do so," replied Rynne, with gravity unassuming. "Ah! Here comes Mrs. Chedsoye and her daughter. If you don't mind, I'll make myself scarce. I do not care to see them just now, after your having told them about the stolen Yliorides."

"I'm sorry," said George, rising eagerly.

"It's all in the game," gallantly. George saw him gracefully maneuver his way round the crush toward the stairs leading to the bar. Really, he would like to know more about this amiable free-lance. As the old fellows used to say, he little dreamed that destiny, one of those things from Pandora's box, was preparing a deeper and more intimate acquaintance.

"And what has been amusing you, Mr. Jones?" asked Mrs. Chedsoye. "I saw you laughing."

"I was talking with the rug chap. He's a droll fellow. He said that he had met you somewhere, but concluded not to renew the acquaintance, since I told him that his adventure in part was known to you."

"That is foolish. I rather enjoy meeting men of his stamp. Don't you, Fortune?"

"Sometimes," with a dry little smile. "I believe we have met him, mother. There was something familiar about his head. Of course, we saw him only from a distance."

"I do not think there is any real harm in him," said George. "What made me laugh was a singular proposition he set before me. He said he owned stock in a concern called 'The United Romance and Adventure company,' and that for a specified sum of money, one could have any adventure one pleased."

"Did you ever hear of such a thing?" cried the mother merrily. Fortune searched her face keenly. "The United Romance and Adventure Company! He must have been joking. What did you say his name is?"

"Rynne. Joking is my idea exactly," George agreed. "The scheme is to plunge the stockholder into a real live adventure, and then let him pull himself out the best way he can. Sounds good. He added that this rug business was an instance of the success of the concern. There goes the music. Do you dance, Miss Chedsoye?"

"A little." Fortune was preoccupied. She was wondering what lay behind Mr. Rynne's amiable jest.

"Go along, both of you," said Mrs. Chedsoye. "I am too old to dance. I prefer watching people." She sat down and arranged herself comfortably. She was always arranging herself comfortably; it was one of the secrets of her perennial youth. She was very lovely, but George had eyes for the daughter only. Mrs. Chedsoye saw this, but was not in the least chagrined.

"It is so many years since I tripped the light fantastic toe," George confessed, reluctantly and nervously, now that he had bravely committed himself. "It is quite possible that the accident will be primarily upon the trip."

"Perhaps, then," replied the girl, who truthfully was out of tune, "perhaps I had better get my wraps and we'll go outside. The night is glorious."

She couldn't have suggested anything more to his liking. And so, after a little hurrying about, the two young people went outside and began to promenade slowly up and down the mole. Their conversation was desultory. George had dropped back into his shell and the girl was not equal to the task of drawing him out. Once he stumbled over a sleeping beggar, and would have fallen and was not caught him by the arm.

"Thanks. I'm clumsy."

"It's rather difficult to see them in the moonlight; their rags match the pavements."

The Egyptian night, that sapphirine darkness which the flexible imagination peoples with lovely and terrible shades, or floods with mystery and romance and wonder, lay softly upon this strip of verdure aslant the desert's face, the Valley of the Nile. The moon, round, brilliant, strangely near, suffused the scarred old visage of the world with phantom silver; the stones of the parapet glowed dully, the pavement glistened whitely, all things it touched with gentleness, lavishing beauty upon beauty, mellowing ugliness or effacing it. The deep blue Nile, herbombed with the glancing lights from the silent feluccas, curling musically along the sides of the frost-like dahabehs and steamers, rolled on to the sea; and the blue-white arc-lamps, spanning the Great Nile bridge, took the semblance of a pearl necklace. From time to time a caravan trooped across the bridge into Cairo. The high and low weird notes of the tom-toms, the wheezing protests of the camels, the raucous defiance of the donkeys, the occasional thin music of reeds, were sounds that crossed and recrossed one another, accidentally.

"Do you care for poetry, Mr. Jones?"

"I? I used to write it."

"And you aren't afraid to admit it?"

"Well, I shouldn't confess the deed to every one," he answered frankly. "We all write poetry at one time or another; but it's generally not constitutional, and we recover."

"I do not see why any one should be ashamed of writing poetry."

"Ah, but there is poetry and poetry. My kind and Byron's is born of kindred souls; but he was an active genius, whereas, I wasn't even a passive one. In all great poets I find my own rejected thoughts, as Emerson says; and that's enough for my slender needs. Poets are rather uncomfortable chaps to have round. They

FACE DISGRACEFUL WITH RASH

Large Scabs Would Form, Fester and Break. Itching and Burning. Kept from Sleeping. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—"My trouble of skin disease started merely as a rash on my face and neck, but it grew and kept getting worse until large scabs would form, fester and break. This was just on the one side of my face, but it soon scattered to the other side. I suffered a great deal especially at night on account of its itching and burning. I would scratch it and of course that irritated it very much. This rash was on my face for about two years sometimes breaking out lots worse and forming larger sores. It kept me from sleeping day or night for a couple of months. My face looked disgraceful, and I was almost ashamed to be seen by my friends.

"A friend asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I would bathe my face with hot water and a lot of Cuticura Soap, then I would put on the Cuticura Ointment. In less than two days time, the sores and inflammation had almost entirely disappeared, and in four weeks' time you could not see any of the rash. Now my face is without a spot of any kind. I also use them for my scalp and hair. They cured me completely." (Signed) Miss Fanny Hutchins, Feb. 6, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS ENJOY A FINE SUPPER

Thirty-seven High school boys met at the Y. M. C. A. last evening at 6 o'clock and enjoyed a fine supper provided by the Boys' Work committee. The meeting was presided over by Professor O. J. Barnes; other members of the committee are Henry Droller, Jr., C. H. and E. S. Randolph. After the supper Professor Barnes introduced J. W. Pontius, general secretary of the Ohio State University association, who spoke on the subject, "Sources of Power." After the address the boys voted to meet on Monday evening, Jan. 27, to begin a study of "Life Problems of the High School Boy," to be taught by Attorney E. S. Randolph. The following were present:

Mr. J. W. Pontius, Prof. O. J. Barnes, Attorney E. S. Randolph, Mr. Frank L. Johnson, Prof. G. G. Winter, Frederic Andrews, Ralph Cherry, Paul Coway, Hermann Tickson, Leslie Evans, Wallace Gressley, Frank W. Graham, George Hayden, George Hazlett, Calvin Hazlett, Paul Maranville, Roderic Miller, Merle Orr, George Pfeiffer, B. Durham Pyle, Wilford Rowlands, Orville Rowlands, Phillip Rowlands, Clifford Sheehy, Harold Smucker, Elwood Spelling, Harshel Stephen, Miller Tashel, Donald Van, Edwin Warner, Byron Wiant, Foster E. Wiant, Frank Ryan, Harold Lamp, Dale Warner, Gaylord Moore, Myron Cline, Elmer Long, Paul Neidham, Frank Spencer, Theodore Neal and George Wiley.

When a man finally decides that he is in love, his troubles begin, the imaginary ones. Is he worthy? Can he always provide for her? Is it possible for such a marvelous creature to love an insignificant chap like himself? And that worst of mental poisons, is she in love with any one else? What to do to win her? The feats of Hercules, of Perseus, of Jason; what mad piece of heroism can he lay his hand to that he may make the slumbering fires, and having roused them, continue to feed them?

Manhood, meaning that decade between thirty and forty, looks upon this phase, abashed. After all, it wasn't so terrible; there were vaster emotions, vaster achievements in life to which in comparison love was as a candle held to the sun.

Again she stopped, leaning over the parapet and staring down at the water swirling past the stone embankment. He did likewise, resting upon his folded arms. Suddenly his tongue became alive; and quietly, without hesitancy or embarrassment, he began to tell her of his school life, his life at home. And the manner in which he spoke of his mother warmed her;

Plain City High school defeated the Newark High school boys last night at Hickey Hall by a score of 25 to 38. It was one of the most bitterly contested games played on the Hickey Hall floor this season. Plain City took the lead a few minutes before the close of the first half and maintained this advantage until the finish of the game. Newark's desperate efforts to overcome this lead put more ginger into the game than is usually seen in basketball events.

Some clever team work was shown by both teams, though Newark was head and shoulders above their opponents in this regard. Newark's shortcoming was their failure to maintain the speed with which they opened the game, and their inaccurate basket shooting.

Plain City's team work was not as effective at Newark's, but several of the men were sharks when it came to the point of tossing baskets and they scored almost at will in the latter part of the game.

The majority of the points scored by the visitors were the result of the prowess of two men, Sheehan and L. Sherwood. These two men were under the ball most of the time and frequently broke up the combinations of the Newark team.

Newark started off at a whirlwind pace and easily took the lead. This lead was maintained until toward the end of the first half, when Newark sowed up a bit and the half ended with the visitors leading by two points.

Newark again started off like tigers in the second half but Plain City was able to keep pace with them. Their more accurate work made their success assured.

UNION LABEL
Wilson and Banking Reform.

President-elect Wilson has had two conferences about banking reform with Representative Carter Glass of Virginia, chairman of the subcommittee of the House Banking and Currency Committee. He has also consulted various economic experts, and he is reading quantities of literature on the subject. "He has pronounced ideas on the question," Mr. Glass is quoted as saying. It is well that the man who is to become the foremost American has turned his big and well trained mind to this most important issue before the American public. It is evident that Mr. Wilson intends that the credit for adequate reform of our poor banking system shall go to the Democratic party.

With one accord the Progressive organs and orators are blowing their trumpets, beating their breasts and shouting aloud for "social industrial justice." It is a taking cry. Happily the country will not have long to wait for a test of the sincerity of Progressive protestation. There is no more effective social and industrial injustice now afflicting the people of the United States than the existent tariff. There is none other that bears with such instant severity upon men and women least able to sustain the weight of undue taxation. There is none other more easily remediable at the hands of our lawmakers. When Congress shall assemble in extra-session to carry into effect the popular mandate for tariff revision and reduction we shall soon know whether the Progressive outcry is an honest or a hypocritical appeal. "By their works we shall know them."

HON. M. A. WARNES
Introduces Bill to Exempt Mortgage Tax on Real Estate.
Representative Warnes of Holmes county has prepared a bill that would equalize the burden of taxation on borrowers. It is a measure that will be looked upon with favor by everyone except the loan shark and the tax dodger.
The following is explanatory of the bill:

Columbus, O., Jan. 24. A bill introduced to exempt mortgage taxation on mortgaged property is to be passed on the legislature by Representative
M. A. Warnes of Holmes county.
Warnes' bill goes several times as far as that presented by Representative J. M. Foreman of Van Wert county.
Foreman's bill provides that the owner of mortgaged property shall have amount of the mortgage, not exceeding $10,000 or half the value of the property, deducted from his tax discount.

The Warnes measure exempts the owner of mortgaged property from paying tax on the amount of the mortgage up to half the total value of the property. But it also requires the person holding the mortgage to pay taxes on the mortgage. In the county where the property is located.
If the holder of the mortgage fails to do this, the owner of the property must pay the taxes on the mortgage, but he shall be given a receipt for the amount so paid, and it will apply on the principal of the mortgage.

"The principle of double taxation is unjust," Warnes said. "The man who owns a $10,000 farm mortgaged for $5,000 must pay the taxes on a $10,000 valuation, while the man who owns the mortgage must always escape." Warnes expects the opposition of the state tax commission.

The parcel post has already had one effect which has been predicted. It has had a seriously depressing influence on the prices of express company stocks. The shares of one company have dropped 21 3/4 points from the last sale, bringing them to the lowest price touched since 1900. One company has lost 7.5 points. The public has never looked with favor upon the large profits reaped by the express companies, and the present decline, due to the parcel post, will be regarded as a bit of retributive justice which has been too long delayed.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.
Curing a Bunion.
It is not a hard matter to decide upon the treatment of a bunion. First procure a pair of shoes that do not squeeze the toes together. The inner side of the sole of a shoe should be nearly straight, not sloping toward the middle of the toe. The "mannish" cut of shoes usually has this shape, so that they can be procured in all weights of leather. The next thing is to relieve the pressure on the sore joint and also try to reduce the greatness of its original position. The latter can be aided by placing a piece of cotton between the great toe and the second toe.
This tends to throw the big toe back into a straight line with the foot and the joint to resume its proper position. To relieve the pressure a small piece of cotton with a hole cut in the center laid directly over the bunion should be worn during the day.
If the bunion had not existed a great length of time this treatment will be all that is necessary. However, in some cases the bursa has become infected and pus has formed. Then it may be necessary to remove the bursa. In extreme cases the infection has extended to the joint cavity and the end of the bone has become necrotic (dead). In this case it will be necessary to remove a portion of the bone before the bunion can be relieved.

Columbus, O., Jan. 24.—Special.
By calling into his office the leaders of the minority of the two houses concerned with them about legislative matters and soliciting their support for pending bills, Governor Cox is proving to be a rather extraordinary executive.

Hitherto it has been the custom for the governors to entirely ignore the members of the general assembly of opposite political faith and to depend upon his party associates to do promised legislation enacted. Even when their party was in the minority, other executives have shown no disposition to form a working alliance with the majority of the general assembly.

As a result of such a policy, a combination of a few stubborn members of the majority with the minority has resulted in a transfer of power from the regularly elected majority to the minority, the result being a complete reversal of the programs of administration. True, Governor Harmon, in the closing days of the general assembly, went over the minority members in the senate and got sufficient votes to put through some of his measures after a few balky members of the majority assisted Republicans in holding them up, but he started too late.

The new governor has not waited until he was forced to solicit support from Republican members. He has taken the position that all members were elected in the interest of good government and that all should mean to perform their duties. He has also shown that he is sincere when he says that all the pre-election promises and pledges of his party must be redeemed.

Recently the executive called into his office the leaders of the Republican members in both houses and asked them to aid him in getting through his bill to establish a legislative reference bureau, a department that has proven to be of inestimable benefit to good government in Wisconsin. The executive desires to have this adopted as an emergency measure, a two-thirds vote being necessary. Both houses promised their assistance, not only on this measure, but also on all other bills that the governor has demonstrably for the public good. The governor then assures a new and valuable for Ohio, for the two big bills passed earlier before worked harmoniously in the legislative halls.

The legislature having forced the bills to pass, make known his intent to remove the name of his employer and the subject to which the committee refers. Senator Potting of Akron was quick to take action when he discovered what he believes was an attempt to reduce the salary of the legislative body.
Strode, who is a member of the committee, introduced his measure to compel city operators to pay for advertising that calls attention to the evils, a pamphlet appeared on the docks of the members of both houses, in which a bitter attack was made upon the Green bill and figures and demanded even to influence senators against it.

Senator Potting discovered there was nothing about the pamphlet to identify the circulators or the persons responsible for it and he immediately introduced a measure to prohibit the distribution in legislative halls of any material except for Red, Weak, Watery Eyes and Granulated Eyelids.
No Smarting—Just Eye Comfort.

anonymous letters, circulars, books and pamphlets.
The members of both houses were considerably surprised and indignant about the trick, and if the authors of the pamphlet believed they accomplished anything in their efforts to beat the Green bill, they have another thing coming, according to Senator Potting and others.

If the people of Ohio give State Dairy and Food Commissioner Strode the support that he is entitled to in his efforts to amend certain sections of the state dairy and food laws, the public will witness the introduction of a minimum of the practice of short-measuring and weight—a fraud that robs the Ohio consumers of several millions of dollars each year.
Commissioner Strode has no fight to make with the dishonest grocer and wholesaler, but he has a chip on his shoulder for the dishonest dealers who conduct stands in the market places, along street carriages and drive retail produce wagons.

The state commission is fighting simply for a square deal for the consumer and he has the backing of the Ohio Retail Grocers' association, the state organization of wholesale dealers and the dealers of weights and measures of the Commonwealth.
Strode has drawn a set of bills to amend the existing code of dairy and food laws in such a manner that advocate will have to be sold by weight, or, if it is not, then only standard size measures may be used.
At present unscrupulous dealers are able to use most any old kind of a measure that they see in the statutes being so indefinite that they may be construed to have several different meanings. If Strode has his way, he predicts there will be quite a noticeable reduction in the cost of living.

"The man who rents a room in which to conduct a grocery and then pays taxes on his stock need not be fearful by the consumer," said Mr.
Strode. "It is the itinerant vendor and the man who operate stands in the market that I am after. The latter class rob the people of thousands of dollars annually and the honest dealer must suffer under the suspicion that is aroused in attempts to right conditions. But I am simply helping the honest grocer as well as the consumers, for if my bills go through, the honest dealer will no longer have to compete with the man who is able to cut his prices and make it up by using false measures and scales."

City officials who are in Columbus this week refuse to be the scapegoat for state officials, who want to unload onto them the cause of the rapid increase in governmental expenses.
Uncle Judson Harmon, who is now sojourning in Europe, before he retired from the governor's chair, aroused the ire of city officials by pointing out in his message to the general assembly that there has been an enormous increase in expenditures of public money by municipal officers.

This pointed reference was discussed at the annual convention of the League of Ohio Municipalities in this city, and a counter attack was made upon the expenses of the state government, which, it was asserted, had mounted as fast as the mercury does in a thermometer during a change from wintry to torrid temperature.
Governor Cox immediately took up the controversy and has decided that there shall be established a state budget commission, which shall consist of state officials, who shall serve without extra compensation, to investigate the needs of the different state departments and institutions, and the financial management of each every 12 months, and report their findings to the governor, who shall transmit them to the general assembly. This in effect would be auditing of each branch of the government every year.

The convention of the Ohio League of Municipalities has disclosed there will be a bill made by the ultra-radical element of the state to break the limitations of the Smith 1 per cent tax law with respect to expenditures of public money, while the more conservative element of the commonwealth who refuse in progressing in a safe and sane manner will fight to continue the rigid limitations of the law.

In Cleveland, where they have an extraordinary ambitions and energetic mayor, who wants the city to move forward with lightning speed, the Smith law has been a curb, holding up some of the projects that the mayor holds so dear and retarding activities generally. He has not been able to get the money needed on account of the restrictions of the 1 per cent tax law.

The sessions of the municipal league were entirely given a discussion between Cleveland officials who urged a repeal of the law limiting expenditures of tax money, and Cincinnati officials led by Mayor Henry T. Hunt, who contended that the measure should stand as it is until the other measures contemplated in the Harmon tax reform were enacted into law and the state scheme given a fair trial. Mayor Hunt contended that if the Smith law forced some municipal officers to claim that there was more than all lawyers have to do at times—it was a cause for personal property assessment and been negligent.
With these men removed from local influences there is a law which will take them and give instead of elective officials, with the appointing power ledged in Columbus, the Queen City executive asserted millions of dollars would be added to the personal property duplicates, and the financial straits would be relieved.

clude a preparatory course for nurses.

In regard to Mr. Weaver's statement in your issue of January 23, I simply desire to say that for the intelligent Bible reader and student of

THE NECESSARY THING
It's well to be writing a book, or painting a tree and a brook; but, Elizabeth Ann, if you'd please sordid man, you'd better be learning to cook! I know you're a peach and a beauty at playing the harp and the flute; but the man that you wed will expect to be fed on beefsteak, potatoes and fruit. So many Elizabeth Ann, can paint on a vase or a fan; so many can sing like the birds in the spring—so few can do do things with a pan! So many sweet maidens can take a box and some ribbons and make a nice rustic clock that would please Mr. Bok — and so few can get busy and bake! So many can stand and recite the rhyme about curfew tonight! But where is the maid who can make marmalade, or mix up a salad just right? I can't eat a chromo, my dear, and a book tastes exceedingly queer; when I'm empty I long not for sonnet or sonz but for well roasted chunk of a steer. The housekeeping girl is a gem—the girl who can bake, stew and hem! The girls who can play on pianos all day—there's never a shortage of them!

Celebrating his eighty-first birth-worker in many humanitarian move-chances are that Mr. Choate will not do any looking backward, being too busy with the present and the future. The wonderful octogenarian has become "the grand old man of America," and likes the title so well that he expects to hold it for many years to come. Critics may say that he robs Peter to pay Paul by acting as attorney for soulless corporations and spending no small part of his

Choate is now president of the

SOCIETY

In honor of her son Robert's eighth birthday, Mrs. John E. Hohl entertained with a surprise party last evening. The hours from 7 to 9 were enjoyed by the little ones with games and contests. During the evening dainty refreshments were served, a birthday cake centering the large table, which seated the following: Robert Hohl, Lester Newark, Willard Hartman, Stacey Johnson, Alfred Newkirk, George Stiger, Ralph Newkirk, Clay Horn, Jesse Anderson, John Hohl and Ruth Hohl.

Master Robert received a number of presents from his little friends.

The Sylvia Bible class entertained at the home of Mrs. A. H. Rickert, in North Fifth street, Friday afternoon. A musical program was the feature of the afternoon and a silver offering was taken up, the proceeds of which will go toward completing the room that the class pledged themselves to furnish at the Young Women's Christian Association.

Miss Lela Cones of Franklin avenue will be one of the bridesmaids for Miss Lillian Miller of Newark, whose engagement to Mr. Clyde Irwin of that city had been announced. Miss Miller is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. H. Miller and has friends in Columbus, where she visits often. Mr. Irwin is a graduate of Denison University and is a civil engineer.—Ohio State Journal.

Mrs. Ralph Wyeth is entertaining with a few tables of bridge this afternoon at her home in Granville street.

The Minerva club met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Wickham in East Main street. After a pleasant afternoon spent with the needles, Mrs. Wickham served luncheon to the members and two guests, Mrs. John Francis and Mrs. Al Williams.

A pretty event of the week was the luncheon given today by Mrs. Charles W. Montgomery at her home in Granville street.

Mrs. J. C. Beckoven was hostess to this week's meeting of the Investigators club at her home in Kilber avenue. Following is the program given: Cities of China—Mrs. Eugene Ball, The New China—Mrs. John Sachs, Ellis Island—Mrs. Rose Wilson, Critic—Miss Glenn.

Both Sides of the Desire for Change

I SN'T this the dearest little house!" the woman exclaimed rapturously. "Won't it be just perfect to live here?"

Her companion agreed, and they both examined the place with enthusiasm.

"An open grate! How jolly it will be to sit in front of it and dream dreams!"

"And have all the heat we want," said the practical one.

"What a dear kitchen! Won't we have the jolliest meals! We can cook just what we want and the way we want it."

"And we'll have our friends in," said the other, "and have a lot of dandy little luncheons and teas and suppers. Won't that be fun!"

And thus they went through the house, seeing just what they wanted to see, and no more.

And the woman who was showing it to them thought cynically, as they exclaimed about the open grate, "Yes, just wait till you have to carry coal, and take up ashes and clean up all the dust and dirt."

And as they raved over the kitchen, her thoughts ran, "When you're washed dishes three times a day, you'll change your mind."

For she was sick of housekeeping. Her eyes were turned longingly to boarding. She thought these two were foolish to give it up, though she held her peace, for she wanted to rent her house.

But she thought of the ease of boarding, with no cooking to do, no dishes to wash, no fire to look after. She likewise saw what she wanted to see. She didn't perceive the unsatisfactory food, the tiresome association with strangers for whom she cared nothing, the one cold, cheerless room.

But when this desire for change comes over us, and it does come over all of us at one time or another, most of us see but its alluring aspect. We seldom look critically at its reverse side. But would it not be well for us to do this?

As a rule, pessimism isn't to be advocated. But once in a while, it is wise for a brief time to plan the part of a pessimist. In certain matters, we should look for the reverse side, look at it squarely, and see whether the disadvantages will outweigh the advantages.

When we see the open grate, let us see, not only the glowing fire and the pleasure it gives, but let us also gaze sternly at the coal hod and the ash-can, and decide whether in the long run, their grimy faces will blot out the cheery countenance of the fire.

Let us consider the dishpan as well as the dainty table, before we give up the boarding house for home cooking.

For the change that looks so alluring may have a most unlovely reverse aspect. And it is wise for us to take a look at this before we are beguiled by its alluring face into making it our own.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT OF HIGH SCHOOL

The second semester of the school year begins Monday, January 27th and promises to be the best in the history of our school.

The Commercial department of the High school is offering special work. While it is generally known that there is a regular four year's Commercial course, few know of this special work, consisting of bookkeeping, shorthand, stenography, commercial English, commercial law, penmanship and spelling, which has been offered this year for the first time. Any boy or girl between the ages of 16 and 21 who has completed the Grammar school may take this work.

The present enrollment in the department is over 100. The equipment is complete in every respect. There are 20 standard typewriters in use constantly, each pupil practicing two or more hours each day.

In addition to the use of the typewriter, students are taught to use the mimeograph, letter copying devices, letter press and to do filing.

There is no reason why any boy or girl should not obtain a commercial education if he or she has that desire. The patrons of our schools, business men and women or any one interested, are cordially invited to visit the schools at any time and inspect the work being done.

Beginning classes in shorthand, type-writing, penmanship, spelling and commercial law will start Monday, January 27.

NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Tuesday evening the sixth number of the high school lecture course was delivered by the eminent humorist, John Kendrick Bangs. Mr. Bangs is a noted author of the Mark Twain type and is also an associate editor of Harper's Weekly. The subject chosen by Mr. Bangs for the evening was "Celebrities I Have Met." "Celebrity" is a word of Mr. Bangs own coining and is a combination from celebrity, which furnished him material for a delightful little anecdote. In the course of the evening he very humorously portrayed such eminent characters as Rudyard Kipling, Conan Doyle, and celebrated authors and leaders of public life of both hemispheres he had come in contact with. The lecture was something out of the ordinary and was well attended and appreciated by the audience.

Next Monday will begin the second semester of the school year, the first semester being concluded by the examinations this week.

The practice for the play "Sweet Lavender," to be given by the Athenian and literary societies will commence next week.

FIRST THINGS

The first number of the New Orleans Picayune, the first English daily in Louisiana, was issued seventy-six years ago today. The first newspaper in Louisiana was a French journal, Le Moniteur de la Louisiane, which appeared in 1794. Abeille, the great French daily journal of the Crescent City, was founded a decade before the Picayune was launched on its long and useful career. The Picayune's morning rival, the Times-Democrat, celebrated its semi-centennial this year, having been born during the troubled period of the civil war. The afternoon press of the southern metropolis is comparatively youthful, the Evening Item having been established in 1877, and the States three years later. The Picayune derived its odd name from the Spanish coin called picayune, worth about six and a quarter cents, which was once in circulation throughout the southern part of the United States.

Biographical in its nature, it will have the effect of minimizing the amount of ephemeral literature read, and gives to the library shelves of books of permanent character, which will be useful to students and the public generally for years to come. A list of the first installment of these books has been published in the city papers. They are for free circulation. Any one may obtain a card by applying at the desk at the library.

LICKING MAN ATTENDED THE CONFERENCE

Of Farm Management Workers Held at Washington, D. C.—Different Methods Advanced.

Editor Advocate.—We have been in Washington, D. C., for some days attending a conference of farm management workers. The work is quite new and the object of bringing these workers together from various portions of the United States and Canada was to harmonize their work and arrive at some definite conclusion as to the best methods of going about the work.

While a "cast iron" rule that each and every one shall pursue can not be laid down, yet three methods seem to be pre-eminent. One is what is called a Farm Record Survey Method in which the investigator visits sufficient farms in a given locality, taking practically an inventory of that farm and finding if the farmers of that locality are prosperous, or not, and if not prosperous, suggest such changes as to the investigator seems necessary. The second plan is for the agent to announce by circular, newspaper, or otherwise, his presence in the community, and ask that farmers call on him, or write him, and give them such assistance as they may desire, visiting farms and localities when possible. The third method is a combination of these two.

By the first method the investigator assumes to shape and mould the progress of the community.

In the second method the agent assumes the farmers know what they want, and simply assist along the lines the farmers themselves desire to progress.

Now in the first method the investigator is not assuming that the farmers are "dumb driven cattle." He very well knows that his records and figures must be presented in such a way as to appeal to the intelligence of the farmer, or no progress will be made. He simply assumes that farmers as a rule are too busy to make records, study statistics, analyze the situation and see wherein lies the difference between farmers that are prosperous and those that are not prosperous.

To illustrate, it is told that some of the high school girls of Newark, when taking a day's outing in a picturesque locality and near the close of the day called at a farm house. The good farm lady expressed a hope that they had enjoyed the day to which the girls answered, "Delightful." We would think you would be happy every day with such beautiful surroundings.

"Oh," said the good farm woman, "I have no time to look at such things."

And so it is, the farmers frequently do not have time to even look over the fence at their neighbor's farm.

This summer, in our limited study of individual farms, we have frequently found that practices that were quite successful on a certain farm were not known by the neighbors. But by whichever method the work may be pursued, the ultimate end is more revenue per farm and a better rural community.

TROLLEY CRASHES INTO A FREIGHT

Lockport, N. Y., Jan. 25.—One man was killed and twenty seriously injured in a collision between a trolley passenger train and a freight on the International Railroad here today. The injured are all members of the Lockport fraternal order of Elks who attended an entertainment last night. The trolley was standing on the main line when it was crushed into the freight.

or "acid" soil could be determined by the presence of sorrel, by the growth of certain weeds which detracted from the efficiency of the clover yield, and by the limus test. This latter test, however, is characterized as very delicate and unless a farmer is experienced in the distinction of color changes, hardly to be attempted.

"If you are not getting as much clover from your field as you ought to," urged Mr. Bachtell, "try liming a strip of your field, down one side, and compare results. If it needs lime to correct soil acidity, it will easily be shown in the results of this experiment, and if the soil needs lime you can't afford to be without it on your soil."

In discussing the kinds of lime most advantageous for use, Mr. Bachtell advised the use of quicklime, as 50 pounds of this has the same correction ability as 100 pounds of ground limestone, even though it may be more convenient to handle. The problem becomes an economic one, based on freight rates, delivery cost and ease of application. He also suggested that the best time for application would be when preparing the soil for the corn crop.

"What's the use of experimenting with other grasses when timothy will yield the highest average," was the pointed question that Mr. W. C. McCoy fired at his audience, during his discussion of "Grasses," a most practical number on the Friday morning program. The extension worker showed the comparative value of timothy yields with other grass crops, and emphasized a number of points essential to the production of large crops. "You must keep the weeds out of the field," he suggested, "and raise a good quality of timothy hay. This is economic in more ways than one, and will be found more profitable from the very start. We must also take into consideration the fact that soil fertility is being decreased and make preparation for this loss of fertility by the constant use of a good fertilizer."

"We should also consider," he suggested, "the digestible nutrients offered by the quality of timothy we are growing, its palatability and the permanency of its stand. 'It's not safe to pasture a meadow,' he advised, 'if you expect a permanent stand.'"

The value of seed selection was also taken into consideration, and the speaker suggested that farmers keep in touch with recent development of seventeen new varieties of timothy.

"Don't forget that all pasture lands are in need of renovation," he added. "On this pasture lands, this can be done by applying one or two tons of lime on acid soils. Top dress with manure in the fall, and disc or harrow in the spring. Then sow, per acre, ten pounds of Kentucky Blue grass, 5 pounds of timothy, 2 pounds of white clover, and 4 pounds of alfalfa."

Mr. Bachtell's Friday afternoon lecture was a resume of the soil fertility instruction given during the week, in which he gave particular attention to the manner in which soil experimentation is carried on by the state station, and suggested means of contemporary effort along similar lines by Ohio farmers, wherever a possibility of such work is offered. He laid particular stress on the importance of farmers reading agricultural bulletins and circulars issued by the experiment station and the College of Agriculture, as well as interesting themselves in the reading of reliable farm magazines.

Special attention was called to the Farmers' Week to be held at the State University by the College of Agriculture, January 2 to 7 inclusive, at which information will be given in numerous lines of agricultural effort not touched upon in the local course. So great has been the interest during the past week, it is expected that fully a score of Paraskians and residents of Lima township will take

RUN TRAINS THROUGH WATER

Galva, Ill., Jan. 25.—The flood has become so serious around Belmont, Mo., that the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railroad today discontinued service on its Belmont branch. The Cotton Belt railroad is running its trains through water to get into Eldon Point, Mo. The water which has broken through the Mississippi river levee is flooding much wheat land.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 25.—Telephone reports from Greenville, Miss., say that Duell Levee near Bogot, Miss., broke today. Unless it is controlled the water probably will flood thousands of acres of farming land in the Delta counties of the Mississippi.
